"Legend has it that nine undergraduates calling themselves nine pearls established a society in Oxford called the Navhattan society. One of these 'ratans' was Maulana Mahmood Ali, and this society ultimately became "the oxford Indian majlis." At that time the majlis was an extremist body, as there was no restriction or restraint on freedom of speech. One heard the most blood-curdling speeches at the meeting of the society. The speeches were anti-government, often highly seditious, calling always for the abdication of empire in India.

UNIT - II

2. Write an essay in about 300 words on any one of the following topics : 14

UNIT - III

3. Make a précis of the following passage in about 1/3 of its total length. Also suggest a suitable title :
- "Today, almost every country faces the threat of terrorism in varying degrees : why has terrorism become so popular a means for achieving ends ? Political, economic and social causes can be identified for the mushrooming of terrorists groups.

Political desires and ambitions conflicting with those of the government are impressed through violence so that they would be better heard. Growing political unrest and dissatisfaction erupts in the form of terrorist activities as the state itself is seen as the seat of sin and corruption. The constitutions of most democracies provide for equal rights but often these may be denied to one group. Some statutes of the law may not be rightly enforced or enforced at all. Criminalisation of institutions leads to a general sense of discontent. To a large extent, it is such a scenario which is responsible for the deterioration of the social and economic conditions. The formation of terrorist groups then is reactionary. Aiming to revamp the social set-up or improve the economic situation of common people terrorist groups seek political goals through the means of violence. It is again the wish to improve one's lot socially and economically, that drives ordinary persons to terrorism. This is much the case in India.'

UNIT - IV

4. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow: 14

"There is no need to define morality; let man be simply compassionate'. This sentence expresses the basic essence of morality : The extent to which it relies on compassion for its definition. For when we think about it is not that truly human feeling of compassion the basis of all morality ?"

Morality rests for its very meaning on the concepts of 'good' and 'bad' where 'good' refers to all thoughts and deeds that do not aim at or accomplish any harm or injury or do not involve an attempt to inflict sufferings on others. Thus morality (or what is not morality) is based on man's ability to understand, being able to sympathise, feel kindness and sorrow for and identify himself with the sufferings of his fellow men. So only compassion can give rise to moral thoughts and feelings.

Questions :

- (i) How compassion is the basic essence of morality ? 3
- (ii) What is the meaning of morality ? 3

'The framers of the constitution were conscious that, in a country of sub-continental dimensions, immense diversities, socio-economic disparities and multitudinous people with possibly divided loyalties, security of the nation and stability of its polity could not be taken for granted. The framers, therefore, recognized that, in a grave emergency, the union must have adequate powers to deal quickly and effectively with a threat to the very existence of the nation, on account of external aggression or internal disruption. They took care to provide that, in a situation of such emergency, the union shall have overriding powers to control and direct all aspects of administration and legislation throughout the country. A violent disturbance, paralysing the administration of a state, could pose a serious danger to the unity and integrity of the country. Coping with such a situation of violent upheaval and domestic chaos, may be beyond the capacity or resources of the state. Intervention and aid by the Union will be necessary. A duty has, therefore, been imposed by the constitution on the union to protect every state against external, aggression and internal disturbance.

The right to information or right to know is not a fundamental right under the constitution of India.

These restrictions are such as security of the state, friendly relation with foreign states, public order, decency and morality, defaination, contempt of court and integrity and sovereignty of the country. Freedom of speech and expression as provided under the constitution is aimed to achieve many purposes. It provides an individual to achieve sense of self-fulfilment. It helps in discovery of facts. It helps in establishing a reasonable and proper balance between social change and stability.

Fresh as a rose in June,
