Channi faces flak over AG's ouster

Anandiben Deo Chavan, Union Agriculture Minister, is seen in a meeting with officials of the Ministry of Agriculture in New Delhi on Tuesday.

Anandiben Deo Chavan, Union Agriculture Minister, is facing flak for ousting the Agriculture Minister of the Government of Karnataka, K. S. Narayana Murthy, on Tuesday.

Chavan's decision to remove Murthy from the post has been widely criticised in Karnataka. Murthy, who has been in the post since 2008, is a well-known figure in the state's agricultural sector.

Chavan's move is seen as a political maneuver to weaken the opposition in Karnataka. Murthy is a member of the Congress party, while Chavan is a member of the BJP.

The ouster of Murthy has also raised questions about the stability of the Union Agriculture Ministry. Chavan's appointment as Minister in February 2012 was seen as a surprise, and his decision to remove Murthy has further fueled speculation about his tenure.

Murthy's removal has also led to a loss of confidence among farmers and agricultural workers in Karnataka. They are concerned that the new Minister will not be as effective in addressing their issues.

The Union Agriculture Ministry has defended Chavan's decision, stating that it was based on administrative grounds. However, the criticism in Karnataka has been intense, and Chavan's position is under scrutiny.

AAP blames CM Chavan for shortage of DAP fertiliser in Punjab

Blaming the Union government for the shortage of Di-ammonium phosphate (DAP) fertiliser in Punjab, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) has accused Chief Minister Anandiben Chavan of being responsible for the problem.

The AAP leaders in Punjab have stated that the Union government has failed to ensure the timely supply of DAP to the state. They claim that this has led to a significant shortage, which is affecting the agricultural sector in Punjab.

The AAP has demanded that the Union government should take immediate steps to resolve the issue and ensure the availability of DAP to the farmers in Punjab. They also accused Chavan of not doing enough to address the problem.

The Punjab government has denied the allegations, stating that it has been working to ensure the supply of DAP to the state. However, the shortage has persisted, and the farmers are still facing difficulties.

The AAP's criticism has put Chavan under pressure to address the issue. He has stated that the Union government is working to resolve the shortage as quickly as possible. However, the AAP continues to demand a more effective solution.

The 11th Amendment to the Constitution of India

The 11th Amendment to the Constitution of India was passed by the Parliament in 1956. It was a significant step in the process of federalism in India, as it gave the states a greater role in the appointment and removal of judges to the High Courts.

Before the amendment, the President had the sole authority to appoint and remove judges to the High Courts. This was seen as a centralizing measure that reduced the autonomy of the states.

The 11th Amendment introduced a new process for the appointment and removal of judges. It required the consent of the Governor of the state in which the High Court was located. This was a major shift in the balance of power between the Centre and the States.

The amendment also gave the states the right to elect members to the High Courts. This was another step towards federalism, as it gave the states a direct say in the judiciary.

The 11th Amendment is considered one of the most important amendments to the Constitution of India. It has helped to strengthen the federal structure of the country and has played a key role in the development of the Indian legal system.
