Man thrashed to death in Del, 2 held

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: A 28-year-old man was murdered in full public view by two brothers in northwest Delhi's Adarsh Nagar area on Friday. The reason is said to be a monetary dispute. Police have arrested both the accused.

The murder was captured on a CCTV camera. In the footage, a man wearing a t-shirt and shorts, was seen walking when one of the attackers comes running and started a fist fight. Another person, who came on a scooter, joined the attack. Later, another man tried to intervene and removed one of the attackers. But the other accused mercilessly kept attacking the victim with bricks and other things. Several other people were standing and watching the incident from a distance.

The deceased has been identified as Narendra alias Buntay, a resident of Azadpur. He was earlier involved in robbery, theft, and snatching cases.

At 2.15 pm on Friday, police received a call about the incident. "The caller informed us that a person was injured with a blade. A police team reached the spot and the victim was sent to a hospital. Later, he was referred to a higher centre where he was declared brought dead," an officer said.

It was found that he was assaulted by Rahul Kalia (22), another bad character of Adarsh Nagar police station, and his brother Rohit Kalia (20). Rahul was involved in snatching, robbery, and arms act cases.

60 years & rolling — this small cycle shop in Agrasen Chowk

Etablished six decades ago by his father, Sanjay Kumar (53) now runs this small shop selling bicycles in Agrasen Chowk. Over the past 35 years, Kumar has seen the evolution of bicycles — from the sturdy black and green ones of yesteryears to the all-terrain bikes of today. Unlike in the past, when only a few players dominated the market, customers now have a variety of options, he says. These bikes are not necessarily available only in cycle shops. Outlets dealing with sports equipment also keep cycles these days, says Kumar. "Changes in style and design are just cosmetic ones. The real change has been in the mindset. Just about a decade back, if an office-goer rode a cycle to work, he was sure to be ridiculed for his choice of transport. But now, cycling is like making a statement. It shows you care about your health and fitness as well as the environment," says Kumar. But the thing that worries him the most is the lack of proper cycling infrastructure. In a country where cars, buses and trucks rule the roads, he feels cyclists are the most vulnerable ones. "The cycle is here to stay. I have seen the transformation of a cycle from being a necessity to a fashion statement. Both these factors will co-exist," he says.

Classic dastan to mark a return to old ha

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Gurgaon: The Arts and Literature Foundation, the team behind the popular Gurgaon Utsav, the city's springtime celebration of a culture, is returning to a space that promises to bring back good memories.

In June, the classic Dastan-e-Chouboli will be staged at the auditorium in Apparel House, the venue that not too long ago housed Epicentre, the Millennium City's one-time cultural hub that witnessed audiences with shows in theatre, music and dance.

Showing off his storytelling skills will be fated dastango Mahmood Farooqui (right), who will be joined on stage by Darain Shahidi and latterly, Farooqui's Urdu adaptation, which was then given the form of a dastan in 2013. Like all folk tales, this is a story within a story.

Dastan-e-Chouboli has been adapted from Vilaydan Detha's version of a Rajasthani folk tale, via Christie Myrill's translation from Rajasthani into English about a princess called Chouboli who vows that she will marry only that man who can make her speak four times in one night. Seventeen times, twenty-four princes tried and failed, and found themselves rotting in a dungeon grinding fodder for horses. But a brave and valiant Thakur, a fellow who shoots 108 arrows through his wife's nose every day, years to his luck. Enter the Thakur's wife, who cleverly manipulates an ego that threatens to consume him. What happens to the Thakur? And how the task given by Chouboli be completed? It is an enthralling story bubbling with wit, humour and sarcasm, and replete with twists.

A master of storytelling, Farooqui's spellbinding, king forward to Gurgaon. "I am delighted to evergreen hit, House audio is being made thanks to the efforts of the Arture Foundation. Fabulous news NCR," Farooqui presented with Pun re, Dastan-e-Chouboli be completing performance House at 7/12. Tickets 12. Bookmyshow
